Allianz Global Benefits is now part of Allianz Partners

- Allianz Global Benefits GmbH has moved under the roof of Allianz Partners, as of January 1, 2023
- The aim is to enhance the Allianz Group's value proposition for multinational corporations in the global employee benefits field
- This move will facilitate central steering of the entire global employee benefits value chain to ensure strong delivery to the market

Stuttgart/Paris, February 28, 2023

Allianz Global Benefits (AGB) GmbH, the employee benefits network of the Allianz Group, has joined Allianz Partners, a world leader in B2B2C insurance and assistance, as of January 1, 2023.

This strategic move will allow the Allianz Group to significantly enhance its value proposition for multinational corporations in the field of global employee benefits through a holistic corporate life, pension and health insurance offering and strengthened distribution capabilities.

"I am delighted to welcome Allianz Global Benefits to the Allianz Partners family. There are many synergies between Allianz Partners and AGB in terms of the broker channel, customers, proposition and market approach. Our joint and strengthened B2B2C approach will allow us to further leverage our expertise in both International Private Medical Insurance and local employee benefits program business. Multinational corporations can expect a flexible and innovative set of employee benefits solutions including a strong health & wellbeing service proposition," says Ida Luka-Lognoné, CEO Health at Allianz Partners.

"This is a considerable step in the evolution of our current AGB business model," Dirk Hellmuth, CEO of Allianz Global Benefits says and adds, "it implies increased capabilities to centrally steer the entire global employee benefits value chain and to ensure strong delivery to our existing and new clients."
